

Patient opinions about the “#Theatre Cap Challenge” being implemented at QEHB

Created by Frances Ives, Dr Joseph Swani and Dr Peter Isherwood
for the UHB #TCC working group, October 2018

Executive Summary

129 patients were surveyed about the introduction of names and roles on theatre hats. The patients are extremely supportive of this initiative believing it to be a good idea that will make them feel safe and re-assured during their peri-operative experience.

Summary:

Our patient group is extremely supportive of this initiative.

Appendix – all patient quotes

- As an older person who can't remember names and feels embarrassed about this it would help me and lots like me, thank you.
- Magic!
- A definite yes as you could recognise trained nurses from healthcares porters and anyone else who wears scrubs around the hospital.
- It's a very good idea.
- A great idea, would make patients feel safe and know who they were talking to.
- Very good idea.
- I think this is a good idea.
- It is easier to see the name on a hat than on a badge as badges are not always visible, a hat is eye level
- A good idea. Personally it wouldn't help me as I have sight impairment
- Would you know you is you if you are under general anaesthetic?
- Nurses usually introduce themselves when they meet you and have some tags anyway but it wouldn't do any harm having names on hats and it may stand out more.
- A bit of a buzz for those who have worked towards higher roles/reward, also may encourage more junior doctors to aspire.
- Different colour uniforms are confusing, love this idea!!
- I think that this would be a good idea as you can identify people who are dealing with you and I think that it makes a more reassuring experience for some people who are afraid or procedures.
- I think it is a fabulous idea as when the staff introduce themselves you often forget, it's nice to be able to use people's names it makes you feel less nervous.
- I think this is a great idea.
- Very helpful doing a good job thank you.
- Make it easier to relate to who is treating you.
- Don't feel particularly strongly about this, but don't disagree with the proposal.
- Makes it easier than looking at badges. Help you remember who is looking after you.
- However if this will increase costs greatly then I would prefer It not to happen.
- Not keen on this idea, I think the name badges do their job and should be more prominent. Theatre hats seem more like branding. The alternative might be to just list the role not the name.
- This would be unnecessary cost to NHS.
- Good idea as long as it is no cost. Do we actually see theatre staff usually too sleepy.
